

ANYTHING TO EAT OUT ON SIDEWALKS

Missourian Reporter Takes a Look at Display of Groceries.

EXPOSED TO DUST AND GERMS

State Commissioner M. H.
Lamb Says Condition is Menace to Health.

WHAT A REPORTER SAW EXPOSED TO DUST AND GERMS ON SIDEWALKS

Cabbages, carrots, lemons, oranges, sweet potatoes, celery, cranberries, California grapes, figs, dried fruit—apples, peaches, apricots, grape-fruit, turnips, pineapples, onions, potatoes, beets, boxes of dates, beans, barrels of oysters, herrings, pickles and sugar, coffee, barrels of sauer kraut, pears, bunches of bananas, crackers, tobacco, molasses, jelly, cider, prunes, raisins, and many other articles of food.

Aside from giving Columbia the provincial aspect of a village, the sidewalk displays in front of grocery stores, according to State Dairy and Food Commissioner Lamb, are unsanitary and a menace to health. Exposed to germs, laden dust and subjected to possible infection in other ways, foods lie all day along Broadway, a nuisance to persons walking along the street and a danger to the health of customers, Mr. Lamb says.

When a reporter for the University Missourian walked through the business district yesterday afternoon, he saw enough to bear out Mr. Lamb's statement that foods are exposed to dust and germs.

Flies, Dust—Germs.

One grocery store on Broadway had benches lined up outside, laden with all sorts of groceries, beside a quantity of meat, piled in a heap. There were pigs' heads, salt meat, dressed rabbits, and fresh meat.

The meat was covered with flies and cobwebs, and a thick coat of dust was over all.

On the edge of the sidewalk in front of this same store was a show case filled with butter. There were two big holes in the case and horses were tied to a post by its side.

Persons passing the grocery stores finger the wares.

Nice for the Dogs.

Dogs passing the stores, have been seen to stop and lick cabbages or pieces of meat. The grocer comes out, if he sees the act, and scares the dog away.

Groceries were not only displayed on benches belonging to the stores, but took up one-half the sidewalk in front of the stores, thereby obstructing the pavements. Several stores had no such display.

"IZZY" ANDERSON TO LEAVE THE UNIVERSITY

Best-Known Student Will Enter Kansas City Medical School.

One man will be missing when the Tiger squad returns from Kansas City after the Thanksgiving Day football game with Kansas. "Izzy" Anderson, assistant coach of the team and probably the best-known student of the University of Missouri, will remain behind to complete the last year of his medical course at the University Medical College of Kansas City, where more clinical advantages are to be had than in Columbia.

"Izzy" Anderson is now in his ninth year as a student of the University. He was graduated from the Academic Department, took graduate work and later entered the medical school. "Izzy" has been a leading worker in the Y. M. C. A. and has been prominently identified with many student activities.

On the football gridiron he was known as one of the most conscientious workers for the success of the team who ever wore the Missouri colors. He developed into a star half back. Lately he has aided in coaching the team and has been head coach of the basketball team.

The passing of "Izzy" from the University, in the minds of the older students and many alumni, will be almost as if one of the Ionic columns on the campus were removed.

SUDDEN MARRIAGE SURPRISES FRIENDS

Mrs. ETHLYNN MITCHELL ARNOLD.

THIS is Mrs. Charles Arnold, who was Miss Ethlynn Mitchell until last Saturday evening, when she and Arnold suddenly decided to wed. The young man telephoned to the office of the Columbia Missouri Herald, of which he is editor, and had employees there send a clergyman to the bride's home to perform the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold are now out of town on their honeymoon. They are expected to return next week.

WEATHER IS HAZY, BUT OPINIONS ABOUT K. U. FOOTBALL GAME AREN'T

However, Weather Man Says it Will Be
Cloudy and Cooler Tomorrow.

This is the kind of day when bluish haze softens the gaunt outlines of trees, when languor creeps into the movements of campus tennis players, when "rooters" whistle to keep their courage up until the Kansas game and the co-eds pledge loyalty, whether Missouri wins or not.

Such ideal conditions couldn't be expected to continue permanently, and the Weather Man created no surprise when he gave out this forecast today: "Slightly cloudy and cooler tonight and Friday."

The temperature was 48 at 6 a. m. and 66 at 2 p. m.

WOULD COMBAT SOCIALISM

Boston Capitalist Proposes to Endow
Thirty Schools.

BOSTON, Nov. 19.—Edmund B. Barbour, a wealthy retired merchant of Boston, is about to endow thirty colleges throughout Massachusetts, for the combating of socialism.

Mr. Barbour believes that most college bred persons flock to the cities and there become discontented and eventually socialists. His plan seeks to counteract this tendency, by affording persons in the country a training in liberal arts, at an expense of $138 for the entire four years' course.

BULLETIN SERVICE HERE ON THANKSGIVING FOOTBALL GAME

The University Missourian will give a bulletin service on the Thanksgiving football game between Missouri and Kansas in the auditorium of the University of Missouri.

A member of the University Missourian staff will be sent to Kansas City to report all the salient points of the game, and they will be telegraphed to the Missourian here to be announced to the stay-at-home "rooters."

Arrangements are under way for adequate telegraph service.

Since many students will leave Columbia Wednesday for Kansas City or to spend the Thanksgiving holidays at home, there will be no issue of the University Missourian Wednesday, Nov. 25. The first issue following Thanksgiving will appear Monday, Nov. 30.

RIVER EXCURSION TO K. C. ABANDONED

Negotiations Are Started Too Late to Charter the Steamer.

TRIP WOULD BE HAZARDOUS

Guarantee is Not Sufficient to Bring Boat from St. Louis.

Owing to the delay in starting negotiations it will be impossible to get river transportation to Kansas City Thanksgiving Day. Word to this effect was received this morning from the Diamond Jo Line of St. Louis.

Following is the letter, in part, received from Isaac P. Lusk, general freight and passenger agent of the line: "I do not know of any available boat that could be secured at this late hour for the occasion. Our steamers are all laid up in winter quarters and it would require at least two weeks to get one of them ready."

Cost Would Be Too Great.

"I do not think your guarantee of 300 persons at $2.50 each would be sufficient inducement for one to send a boat up from here to Kansas City and return. In fact, it would cost over twice that amount to run a large boat, capable of accommodating your number, from here to Kansas City and return."

"The trip would be hazardous, owing to the low stage of water in the Missouri at present, and the possibility of getting frozen in or laid up on a sand bar."

"As I doubt whether there is any boat up in that neck of the woods that would be allowed to carry 300 people or even half that number, I am afraid you will have to abandon your plan for this year and submit to the demands of the railroads."

TELEPHONES THE INVITATIONS

Sudden Ceremony Surprises
Friends of Bride and Groom.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 19.—Former Lieutenant Governor Charles P. Johnson, one of the foremost criminal lawyers of the west, took his third wife in St. Louis yesterday. The bride was Mrs. Anna A. Wilder, who was recently divorced from Andrew Wilder, of Ste. Genevieve, Mo., Gov. Johnson acting as her lawyer.

The marriage was unexpected to the relatives of both parties. It took place in the private office of the circuit judge at St. Louis. Gov. Johnson is 71 years of age, his young wife being twenty-nine years his junior.

Mrs. Johnson has three sons who are living. She is a cousin of the late Dr. August Bernays, who was one of the most distinguished surgeons of the west.

Telephones Invitations.

Thirty minutes before the ceremony, Gov. Johnson telephoned his relatives to attend the wedding, and they hastily gathered at the Courthouse in their street clothes. Gov. Johnson and his wife went to their future home at No. 4200 Washington boulevard immediately after the wedding.

Gov. Johnson defended Arthur Duestrow, the famous millionaire wife-murderer. This was the only case he ever lost. He is also an orator of rank. His second wife, who was formerly Miss Lutie Tunick, of St. Louis, died three years ago.

DR. HILL SCORES CORRIDOR SMOKERS

Blames Cigarettes for Small
Attendance at Student Assemblies.

KNOCKS FOOTBALL KNOCKERS

Doesn't Wholly Approve the Game, But Urges Support of Tigers.

Dr. A. Ross Hill, president of the University of Missouri, at the student assembly this morning, denounced the custom of smoking cigarettes in the corridors or class rooms of University buildings.

Dr. Hill contrasted the attendance at the assemblies of the University of Missouri with that at the University of Kansas. He said at Kansas on assembly days the University auditorium is packed, while at Missouri on the same days hardly more than 100 or 150 students attend. Dr. Hill said the poor attendance here was due to the fact that young men gathered in the corridors of Academic Hall and smoked cigarettes during the assembly hour.

Will Report Smokers.

"In the past I have tried to overlook this matter," said Dr. Hill, "but it has become such a disgraceful occurrence that in the future whenever I see or hear that any student of the University of Missouri is smoking in the corridors or in the class rooms of any University building, I shall report him to the Board of Curators."

Dr. Hill then read a statute of the University prohibiting smoking in the corridors or class rooms of any University building.

Knocks the Knockers.

President Hill told the "knockers" to wait until the end of the football season to start their "knocking." He said it did no good to "knock" the coach and the individual players.

"I am not a firm believer of football as it is now played," he said, "but we have the game and should unite in supporting the team. We should develop at Missouri the spirit that 'Missouri expects every man to do his duty.' With a spirit like that the players would know what Missouri expects and would do it."

The auditorium contained the largest student audience of the year and Dr. Hill's talk was greeted with hearty applause.

At the conclusion of his address the band played popular selections.

ROCKEFELLER ON STAND ADMITS HE RECEIVED REBATES

Richest Man is Recalled As Witness in Litigation to Oust Standard Oil, and Tells Its Early History.

TIMOROUS, HE SEEMS TO HAVE LOST CONFIDENCE

Gives Evidence About Deals
When He First Took Up Business.

Bulletin, 3:30 p. m.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Rockefeller admitted on the stand this afternoon that the Standard Oil Co. accepted rebates of ten per cent from the Pennsylvania Railroad, under an agreement to ship a certain amount of oil annually.

By United Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Trembling, hesitating and in a faltering voice, John D. Rockefeller, supreme dictator of the Standard Oil trust, swore shortly after 2 p. m. yesterday that he would tell the whole truth and nothing but the truth in replying to the questions about to be propounded to him by the United States attorneys who are seeking to learn in an inquiry conducted before Commissioner Ferriss, the corporate status of the greatest corporation in the country today.

The bland assurance which had marked the appearance of the American Croesus at his last appearance in a public trial was gone and he appeared to shrink from the hundred newspaper men and almost half as many photographers who were present at the custom house to greet him following his short walk across Bowling Green from his offices at 26 Broadway.

His Attempt at Humor.

As he entered the court room a buzz of expectancy died away into a dead calm. Replying to a query as to the date of his first connection with the Standard Oil, the magnate replied: "Not later than 1862, nor earlier than 1860."

"You were a very young man then?" "Somewhat younger than I am now," almost timidly replied the richest man in the world, who is also a member of the American Press Humorists. As he spoke the witness swept the room as if seeking the verdict of his curious audience, upon his attempt at humor. Then slowly without interruption friendly counsel guided the witness through the explanations of the intricate formation of the early mergers of Rockefeller's oil company.

Witness is Willing.

The witness was willing, apparently even anxious to explain.

"In 1867," said Rockefeller, "all the warehouses, refinery and sales business of Rockefeller & Andrews was absorbed and entirely taken over by Rockefeller, Andrews & Flagler."

"Was Mr. Flagler a new acquisition to your company?" asked Attorney John G. Milburn.

"Mr. Flagler was a man of large business capacity and a valuable addition to our company," replied the witness confidently.

The witness explained that no change in his business took place until January, 1870, when a number of capitalists were added in the formation of the Standard Oil Company of Ohio, with a capital of $1,000,000.

Business Grew Steadily.

"The Standard Oil Company of Ohio," continued the witness, "took over the property and business of Rockefeller & Co., Rockefeller, Andrews & Co., Rockefeller, Andrews & Flagler. In fact all the property and business in which I was interested."

"Up to this time the business had been one of steady growth and increase. Of course we devoted ourselves to a study of everything that would promote growth in commercial and financial lines. We had no other business."

Journalists to Meet.

The students in the Department of Journalism will meet in Room 36 of Academic Hall Friday evening pursuant to a call of the president, to arrange for a department "stunt." Committees have been at work for several weeks devising "stunts" and yells.
